

CareerBuilder.com Announces Contest to Find The Most Outrageous Reason Why Someone Decided to Look For a New Job

PRNewswire
CHICAGO

CareerBuilder.com debuted its new 2009 marketing campaign with a commercial during this year's Super Bowl. The commercial consisted of numerous unsavory work related situations that repeated themselves multiple times, just like in real life, and made workers think "it's probably time" to look for a new job. To view the commercial, go to <http://www.careerbuilder.com/tv>.

Building on the commercial's success and theme, CareerBuilder.com is announcing a new online video contest to identify the most outrageous reason why someone would think "it's probably time" to look for a new job. The winning video will receive $5,000.

To enter, film a 45 second or less humorous reenactment of your situation and upload it to your <http://www.youtube.com/> account. Next, complete and submit the online application at <http://www.itsprobablytime.com/> by March 10, 2009 at 5:00 pm ET. CareerBuilder.com judges will then review all entries and post the top 10 videos during the week of March 24 for final voting by the American public.

Below are a few things to keep in mind before submitting your video:

- Create a humorous 45 second or less video
- No company names or individual's names can be used in your video
- No surprise tapings -- every individual in the video must know they are in your video and must be older than 18 years of age, as well as have agreed to the terms of the contest
- The entire entry, including any music, must be your original work and cannot be something that was previously published or is owned by a third party.
