

MiracleWorkers.com Lists Top Health Care Jobs for 2015

-Occupational Therapy Assistants Lead Job Growth Projections

CHICAGO, December 9, 2014 – December marks the end to yet another year of strong employment growth within the health care industry. An estimated 225,000 health care jobs were added at an average of 23,000 per month so far in 2014 (Bureau of Labor Statistics), and according to a new list from MiracleWorkers.com – CareerBuilder’s job site for health care professionals –2015 promises to be just as promising for job seekers.

“The health care jobs that will be most in demand next year are often the hardest for employers to recruit,” said Eric Gilpin, president of CareerBuilder’s health care division. “The fields on this list are great specialties for students to enter, as each are projected to grow significantly faster than the national average for all occupations and promise solid incomes.”

The U.S. workforce is projected to grow by 1.2 percent in 2015; however, 28 health care jobs are projected to grow at 3 percent or more. Seventeen of those jobs have median hourly earnings greater than $20 per hour.*

The following list details the fastest-growing, high-paying jobs in health care next year.
